Farmingville, NY – On September 15, Councilman Kevin LaValle (third from right) attended "School Safety Night" hosted by St. Joseph R.C. School in Ronkonkoma. Children and adults got the chance to meet and interact with community first responders from a variety of different organizations. They also had a chance to hear about how the school and church have made advancements in security and safety for the community. Some of the advancements are training of all staff in CPR and AED operations, first aid awareness, trauma kits placed in every classroom, updated policies for school emergency drills and updated security system and security panels. Also on hand were representatives from the Suffolk County Police Department, Suffolk County Sheriff's Office, Ronkonkoma Fire Department and Ronkonkoma EMS.
